PAGES OF A FAMOUS LIFE.

"Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton is one of the most approachable of celebrated woman." So said another representative woman. Dr. Elizabeth B. Voorhies, who added:

"Mrs. Stanton is without doubt the greatest woman of her time. She has done more actual good to and for women, for their enlightenment, advancement, and protection, than all other woman reformers put together; yet she is perfectly unassuming, sweet, simple, and dignified. She has many of the qualities which belonged also in a marked degree to the group of great men with whom Mrs. Stanton was associated. Oliver Wendell Holmes, Theodore Parker, Wendell Phillips, William Lloyd Garrison, and the rest, who stood for the great principles and advanced ideas. These they all sought to impress upon the public mind, rather than create impressions with their own personalities. You need not fear. You will find Mrs. Stanton the embodiment of courtesy."

Thus encouraged, I presented myself at the door of Mrs Stanton's home on Sixty-first street. I was met by the statement, made with an air of sympathy and regret by the negro servant, that his mistress would see no visitors, as she was "busy writing a piece." But I sent up my card with a request for an appointment. The man returned directly to say that his mistress would receive me at once. I was ushered into a room full of suggestions of the pursuits and tastes of the woman who occupied it—books, pictures, a piano, newspapers, periodicals, a large desk with neat piles of manuscript and files of correspondence, and a small writing table with the pretty appointments and trifles which belong to one's social letter writing. Beside the fireplace, which was heaped with logs and pine cones, stood a small olive-wood footstool. Near it leaned a stout walking stick. A cosy arm-chair seemed waiting for its usual occupant. At one side of the chimney-piece was a large photograph of Miss Susan B. Anthony and Mrs. Stanton seated at a table, working side by side upon their history. The room was filled, wall space and all, with articles of use, of comfort, of beauty, or of art or of literary interest, but there was no meaningless ornament, nothing there simply "to fill up." Mrs. Stanton wore, as is her habit, soft Quaker-like folds of lace, laid kerchiefwise about her throat, and a small, dainty white shawl over her shoulders.

I had hardly settled myself when a maid entered with a large crayon potrait of a young girl, which Mrs. Stanton directed her to place in a good light before the visitor.

"What do you think of it?" was the question after a moment's pause. "It is a charming face—brimful of character and determination and courage. I also discover a strong family likeness."

"That is not strange," replied my hostess, evidently much amused, "for it is my own portrait at the age of twenty. You can trace all the features, but the short, curly hair was brown then, though even at that age I had a number of gray hairs,

"I was married at twenty-four. During our engagement my fiance wrote begging me for a lock of hair, when one of my girl friends, in a pure spirit of mischief, pulled out of my head enough white hairs to form a very respectable little curl, which I tied up with a blue ribbon and sent to my sweetheart."

She was silent a moment, and a little slow smile crept over her countenance, as she gazed at the youthful face in the picture. Then she said softly:

"I love to look at that girl—I like to study her, and to think how she has fulfilled herself."

"Had she any distinct idea then of what her career would be?"

"Yes. She had resolved upon that long years before. I was only a little child when my attention was drawn to those conditions of women which I have spent my life seeking to improve. It happened in this way:

"My father was a lawyer, Judge Cady, and had a great many young men in his office who came to him as students. They used to sit at their books in a large room adjoining the office and library. I was a child of eight or nine years, brimful of mischief, life, and activity, with three sisters younger than myself who readily followed my lead. Often when our noise and fun and pranks became unendurable in the house, my mother restored peace by banishing the ringleader to the office. There I always became perfectly quiet, but it was because I took the keenest interest in what I heard. It gradually dawned upon me that, of all the clients who came there, the women alone got no comfort. When they took down the law books and read from them what related to each particular case, the women went away sorrowful. My evident interest in the legal rights of my sex greatly entertained those students, and they let me pour over the laws myself thinking it one of the funniest of sights to see such a young child so occupied. I was taking it all much more seriously than any one imagined.

"By and by I had a birthday, and my father gave me a set of corals—necklace, bracelets, and earrings. I was enchanted, and that day I loved those corals better than anything else in the world. Of course I rushed to show them to my student friends, among whom was a young man from Delaware, named Bayard—an uncle of Minister Bayard. He was always inclined to tease me, and discerned an opportunity on this occasion. So he said: 'If you were my wife, those would belong to me.'

"'What!' I gasped.

"'Yes, they would be mine. You could not even wear them unless I gave you leave, and I could take them from you altogether and give them to some one else, if I chose.'

"This nearly finished me. But one straw more remained to be added. There was an old Scotch-woman, Flora Campbell, who used to come to our house every Saturday to bring chickens, eggs, sweetflag, maple sugar, and herbs. We children were all very fond of Flora. She had been in good circumstances once, and was a superior woman. Her husband had died, leaving all he possessed to his son. Then the son's wife came into Flora's house and turned her out. There was no redress. This story came to my ears, and I resolved to act.

"The next Saturday I followed Flora to the gate and bid her be of good cheer, as those wicked laws were about to be abolished, and she would soon be able to enter upon a life of peace and plenty. The plan I unfolded to her was to avail myself of the absense of the family at church the next morning, to go to the library, and there to cut from the books every line of those dreadful laws against women. I assured Flora that I could do this in a very short time, as I had already put a mark upon the back of each doomed volume in order that I might lay my hands on it readily.

"Of course Flora told my father. But he did not betray her. That evening he took me on his knee and explained the enactment of laws, remarking quite casually that even if his library chanced to take fire and every volume was consumed, it would not make the slightest difference in the condition of anybody beyond the loss to himself. The only way to remedy unsatisfactory laws was to go before the Legislature and get new ones passed to replace them. "That is what I will do,' I cried.

"I was only ten years old, but from that moment I never forgot my purpose—never abandoned it for an instant until it was carried out. When I went before the Legislature with the Woman's Property bill, women I had known well before crossed the street to avoid meeting me. I suppose their sense of propriety was outraged. They cried out that it was preposterous not to trust their property rights in the hands of the men to whom they did not hesitate to intrust themselves. A pretty argument! But I lived to see that a good many of those same women afterward owed all their comfort and prosperity to the efforts which they had reviled.

"One of the greatest incentives I received was my father's expressed regret that I was not a boy. It was in my earlist school days. I answered that I would study just the same as a boy, and I did. I took up Latin and Greek and mathematics, and for five years kept the second place in my classes. The boy ahead of me was two or three years my senior. When I first carried off the second prize, I rushed to my father overjoyed, and anticipating warm commendation, I shall never forget how I felt when he exclaimed: 'Oh, my child, if only you were a boy!' but I went on studying harder than ever.

"We had a dear old Scotch clergyman who had no children of his own, and felt the strongest affection for me and interest in me. He gave me extra lessons all the while in mathematics and the classics. I was devotedly attached to him, and some of the happiest hours of my child-life were spent in his two-wheeled chaise, drawn by an old white horse, when I drove and he sat beside me reading from the Edinburgh Review. When the dear old man died his legacy to me was the Greek lexicon over which we had labored so often, and some of the text books which he had used himself long years before at the University of Glasgow.

My next experience with the drawbacks of my sex came when the boys with whom I had studied were going to Union College. Again I betook myself to my father, full of a fresh proposition. I said that I had made up my mind on the subject, I would go to college. "'But you can't,' my father replied. 'I'd like to know why not,' I said. 'The stage goes, and the boys go. Why not I as well?' and he answered, 'Because there isn't a college in the land where they will admit a woman.

Then he told me I might go to Miss Willard's at Troy, as the best choice which offered, and I finally did, but there was no competition for me. I had studied with boys all my life.

"I shall never forget my disgust when one day there was a cry of 'Heads out!' and the girls rushed to the windows to gladden their eyes by the sight of the boys crossing the campus. Boys were no novelty to me. I had been a co-ed, and I did not sympathize with the craving for boys' society which led the scholars to represent to the faculty that all the young men they became acquainted with were cousins, or other relatives, in order that they might call at the seminary."

A reference to abolition led Mrs. Stanton to remark that she always had been an Abolitionist. Her father was an Abolitionist, and she married an Abolitionist. She added:

"I am not sure that my warm interest in the whole colored race had not its origin in what was, next to my fondness for the old minister of whom I have told you—the strong affection of my childhood—my love for all Peter. Peter was our servant, a magnificent specimen of his race, six feet tall, superbly proportioned, and with the kindest face imaginable. He belonged entirely to us children, and was responsible for us when we were out of the house. It was his duty to see that nothing befell us—that we didn't get into dreadful mischief, or break our necks, or fall into the creek. We adored him.

"Peter was an Episcopalian, and it was a great treat for us at Christmas time to go with him when he helped to decorate the church with evergreens for the festival. I recall perfectly one Christmas morning in particular, when we went to service with Peter. We were Presbyterians, and so there was no church of our own to attend that day. When we went in the sexton said to Peter: 'I will seat the young ladies.' In those days no colored person might sit among the congregation. They were placed by themselves, quite at the back. I remember Peter's answer, that the Judge's daughters would rather stay with old Peter. I should think so! And we got as close to him as we possibly could, dimly aware that some indignity had been put upon our favorite.

"I also remember how, when everybody else had received communion, Peter softly told us to remain quietly in our places until he returned, and then he went forward to the altar rail and knelt alone. But my youngest sister, a small child, would follow. She trotted up the aisle and sat down on the chancel step beside Peter while he received the sacrament. I can see, now, just how they looked, as she clung to his hand and they walked demurely back to our place.

"But I have talked a great deal about the girl in the picture, partly because, as I told you, I like her, and also for the reason that all these events and influences moulded her character. She did have courage, and she has kept it always. I have never been afraid to speak for the highest truth, whenever and wherever I found it."

To a remark concerning religious beliefs, Mrs. Stanton replied:

"Perhaps the seven other religions have as much to recommend them as our own. They are all older, and they are certainly more liberal than ours, while it is undeniable that under no other has woman been so grievously oppressed. But it is not too much to assert that her greatest wrongs, always and everywhere, are traceable to the perverted religious element. That is at the bottom of everything that wrongs her. It compresses the poor little useless feet of the Chinese; it drives the Indian widow into the flame of her husband's pyre. It is the same element, in perversion, which imprisons the women of the harem. It makes our own women slaves to custom, so that they fear to recognize the hope of help held out to them by suffrage—the only remedy for the evils of our industrial, judicial, religious, and social life."

As I rose to take leave my hostess directed my attention to the piano, which, she said, was a birthday gift, presented in advance of the occasion. She added that she always played for a little while in the twilight hour, recalling old songs and the music of long ago. "But," she said, "I must not talk about my gifts. It is premature. Next week will be time for that."

HAPPENINGS IN FRANKLIN AND ADJOINING COUNTIES.

Gleaned From Our Exchanges—The News of the Cumberland Valley and Southern Pennsylvania, With a Few From Bevond Mason & Dixon's.

The Adams Express office in Mount Union, Huntingdon county, was entered by burglars recently. The safe was broken open and a watch and a pair of spectacles valued at $35 were taken.

The senior class of the Dickinson Law School, Carlisle, has elected these class officers: President, Kirk, of McConnellsburg: Vice-President, Fay of Hollidaysburg; Secretary, Campbell of Johnstown; Treasurer, Omwake, of Greencastle.

By paying Mr. Shivery the amount of damages he claimed the State College students engaged in the recent car non hazing episode, escaped appearing in the quarter sessions court. The case was settled by the entire number implicated making up the amount.

John Hurd, the Blair county commissioner, convicted of misdemeanor in office, was sentenced Monday of last week to pay $50 fine, the costs and undergo immediate removal from office. He has appealed to the Supreme Court, and stay of execution has been granted.

In Clearfield county a disease known as "pink eye" is prevailing among the horses to a considerable extent. Dry, dusty roads are thought to have affected the eyes of cattle and horses in that section, and "pink eye" was never worse in Clearfield county than it is at present.

Next year will be leap year and then it will be eight years before another comes. The year 1900 will not be leap year. The year is 365 days and six hours long, less eleven minutes. The eleven minutes amount to one day in the hundred years, when leap year is dispensed with.

Clara Campbell, "Baby Bunting" in the famous $100,000 breach of promise suit against Charles Arbuckle, the millionaire coffee manufacturer of New York, in 1888, died at her home in Ironton, Ohio, a few days ago. In the suit against Arbuckle, Miss Campbell secured a verdict for $45,000.

Many flouring mills throughout Washington county, Md., are running on about half time, on account of the scarcity of wheat. Farmers are holding back for better prices and say they will not sell until the market advances. Unless more wheat is soon obtained dealers say the price of flour will advance.

Handsome glass is a very important part of table furnishing today, and is frequently used to almost the entire exclusion of silver. We have not glass knives, forks and spoons, yet, but there is no doubt they will come. The handles of forks and spoons are being made of cut-glass, so there is no telling what we may have next.

As a result of eating sausage, eleven children in Sandwich, Ont., are poisoned. One of them, a 13 months-old baby, named Louis Coubillon, is dead. The family of Albert Coubillon gave a children's party, at which bologna sausage was freely partaken of. It is feared two more children will die, but the rest are on the way to recovery.

Scarlet fever has become prevalent in Sharpsburg, Md., and the schools have been closed and services discontinued in the churches and Sunday schools. Rev. Mr. Hammack received a notice Saturday of last week from the board of health of Sharpsburg, requesting him to make no appointments for services there until the disease is under control.

A new post office has been established four miles west of Carlisle on the C. V. R. R. at Elliott's Station, and James Elliott has been appointed post master and will be ready for business in a day or two. The name of the post office is Elliottson. The name of the station at that place will be changed from Elliott to Elliottson, the same name as the post office.

The evidence in the investigation of the Anti-Cruelty Society, in Pittsburg, was submitted at the quarterly meeting of the State Board of Charities Wednesday of last week. It was decided to refer the matter to the district attorney of Allegheny county, with a request that he proceed criminally against the accused officials of the society who are charged with immorality.

While a protracted meeting was in progress in the United Brethren church at New Holland, York county, on Tuesday evening of last week, with two penitents at the altar, the roof was seen to be on fire by a man on the outside. He rushed into the church and shouted "Fire" and a stampede followed, but no one was seriously injured. All removable property was carried out and the fire was put out with a loss of about $500. No insurance.

There are now confined in the prison at Wilkesbarre, twenty-one murderers. Four have been convicted of murder in the first degree, and are now awaiting sentence, while one, Bowman, aged 19 years, has been sentenced to death and is awaiting execution. Never before in the history of the county have so many murderers been confined in her prison at one time.

Returns to the Department of Internal Affairs show 29 passengers killed and 612 injured on the railroads within this State during the year ending June 30, 1895; 447 employes killed, and 8,346 injured; 1,107 other persons killed and 10,607 injured. By "other persons" are usually meant trespassers, suicides people under the influence of liquor and those killed at railroad crossings.

Observant travellers over the old Hagerstown road will not fail to notice the interesting fact that the barn of John Shank has on it four kinds of roofing material, representing the styles of roof in vogue at the close of the last, and the earlier and later period of the present century. A large section of the roof is still composed of straw, whilst shingles, slate and iron cover the remainder of it.—Waynesboro Santa Claus.

There are 30 contests in the present House, and the testimony thus far printed aggregates 17,000 pages. Of these 30 cases, five, including that of Mr. McGann, of Chicago, will probably be disposed of by unanimous agreement of the committee. The remaining contested cases will consume probably 32 or 33 days of the time of the House, to say nothing of the burden their consideration imposes upon the committee.

Sallie Lease and Carrie Truax, two pretty girls, were fined $14 each by Justice Thompson of Cumberland, for disturbing service at the M. E. church at Cresaptown, by chewing gum aloud, laughing and talking and making faces at Parson Gillum. They also dared the parson out of the church, called him a liar and designated his church as a hog pen. At first they plead a jury trial, but eventually relented, and paid their fines.

There is now in the hands of the State Printer, the report of Soldiers' Orphans' School Commission for the year ending May 31, 1895. The total number of schools at the date of the report was 852 as against 714 in 1894. There have been received under the act of 1893 over a thousand applications for admission, but only 665 admissions were made. There are still on file 284 applications, upon which the commission has been unable to act, owing to lack of room in the schools.

Secretary Carlisle has sent to Congress the estimates submitted by the several cabinet officers of the money required to be appropriated by the present Congress for conducting the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1897. The estimates make a grand total of $418,091,073. For 1895 the estimates footed up $410,435,079, and the appropriations made for the year by Congress aggregated $412,753,264. Among the mass of detailed estimates are the following: For support of Indian School at Carlisle, Pa., $110,000; improving harbor at Philadelphia, $850,000; Gettysburg National Park, $50,000; Public Building at Allegheny, Pa., $75,000; Public Building at Pottsville, Pa., $40,000.

Representative Livingston, of Georgia, who introduced the joint resolution in Congress looking to the formation of a Congressional committee to investigate the Venezuelan boundary question, was asked what the United States ought to do if Great Britain declines to arbitrate. "Why, fight her, of course," was the reply. "No other course will comport with our dignity and self-respect. Venezuela is not to be considered in this matter. Great Britain has violated the Monroe doctrine. She is continually acquiring additional territory in South America. We cannot and must not permit this. We should go to war if necessary."

On last Thursday night young Mullnix, who was injured by the bursting of a gun some days ago, near Claylick, and which the Journal spoke of last week, died, we suppose, from the injuries inflicted. Many strange stories are afloat as to the cause of death, the most prominent of which is that he was in some way or manner poisoned. Whether or not there is any truth in these stories we are unable to state, but would suppose that the attending physician could enlighten all who may be interested in his death. If the boy's life has wantonly and maliciously been destroyed, the matter should be looked into, and not allowed to go by unnoticed. The remains of the unfortunate lad were buried on Saturday.—Mercersburg Journal.

W. A. Ambrose, Altoona's city solicitor, left home November 22nd. since which time nothing has been learned of his whereabouts. He was interested in three building associations and is worth about $70,000. Mental derangement resulting from ill health is assigned as the cause of his action. While he had in his hands considerable trust funds his property will pay these amounts several times over.

Miss Foster, a school teacher at Pecatonica, Illinois, severely whipped a pupil recently because the odor of onions was on his breath. The children of the school promptly rebelled against the introduction of the rod as punishment for eating onions, and all have eaten raw onions at every school-day meal since. The parents of the children have taken up the cause, and now nearly all the inhabitants of the town are eating onions.

Postmaster General has sent letters to postmasters enclosing a large card, to be posted about the offices, cautioning in regard to the proper mailing and stamping of holiday packages. Every year the department suffers largely through the indifference or ignorance of senders of holiday packages, and in spite of repeated warnings and efforts to prevent it, each winter season finds the Dead Letter Office stored high with holiday gifts that go astray.

Mrs. Susannah Bennett and Wm. H. Bennett were remarried in Hagerstown, Md., by Rev. P. A. Cave, of the Christian church, on Tuesday evening of last week. Last June Mrs. Bennett filed a suit for divorce, which was granted by Judge Stake several weeks ago. Mrs. Bennett was living in Philadelphia at the time the divorce proceedings were taken. She returned to Hagerstown recently, and meeting her husband, again fell in love with him more than ever.

While a party of gunners were scouring the York Hills for game a few days since, they came across the grinning corpse of a man suspended from a tree, by a rope, in the woods near Middletown Ferry. The body was cut down and the authorities notified, but, as nothing but several red handkerchiefs and a religious book were found in the man's clothes, his identity remains unknown. It is supposed, however, that he is from York and had been hanging to the tree for some time.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, the famous temperance reformer and woman suffragist, and her husband, Rev. Daniel Parker Livermore, recently celebrated their golden wedding at Melrose, a suburb of Boston. Mrs. Livermore was born in Boston, December 19, 1821, and at the age of 24 became the wife of Rev. Mr. Livermore, who had begun his ministerial career at the age of 19. The tastes, habits of study and aims of the couple were alike, and for 50 years they have been congenial companions and co-workers.

Bishop A. W. Wayman, next to Frederick Douglass the ablest colored man developed in the United States, fell, stricken with paralysis, at his home, in Baltimore, about 8 o'clock Saturday morning, November 30, and in a few minutes was dead. He was the senior bishop of the African Methodist church of the United States. Bishop Wayman preached in the M. E. church in Chambersburg on the occasion of the last annual conference being held here nearly two years ago. His subject was: "The bliss of the blood-washed."

A $150 lawsuit over a $1.25 pig has just been ended in Michigantown, Ind., and the town treasury is out the former amount. A month ago the city marshal impounded a pig belonging to a farmer named Hillis. The farmer refused to pay the $1.50 pound charge and replevined the pig. The town sued him, and after three trials the Circuit Court the other day gave a verdict for Hillis, with $1.01 damages. More than half the people in town were summoned as witnesses, and the total amount of money lost over the pig runs to a pretty high figure.

The Western Union Company is occupying four inches of land in Broad street, New York, for which it may be compelled to pay the largest price ever given for land in New York city. The Commercial Cable Company, which is about to build a twenty-two-story building adjoining that of the Western Union, has, it is said, discovered that its rival has encroached four inches upon its territory. The actual value of the land so occupied is, at a liberal valuation, about $16,000, but a much larger sum will undoubtedly be exacted, and it is rumored that the Western Union will offer $100,000. There was a meeting last week between the directors of the two companies to consider the disputed land question, but what conclusion was arrived at is not known.

An earnest recommendation that the enlisted strength of the army be increased from its present standard of 25,000 men to 30,000 men is made in the annual report which Adjutant General Ruggles has submitted to the Major General commanding the army. Gen. Ruggles says that, with the extra-duty men, the bands, the sick, the absent, the unfilled vacancies, the actual strength of the army is some thousands below the established figures, and he thinks it will be necessary to have the increase so that we may be assured at all times of having 25,000 men on the fighting line.

On the 2nd inst. C. P. Humrich, Esq., has served as a directer of the public schools of Carlisle for a period of thirty-eight years, and of this period he has for thirty-five years been the secretary of the body. Mr. Humrich began his long service by appointment, the School Board on November 2, 1857, having appointed him a member to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John C. Williams, who removed from Carlisle. On December 7 of the same year Mr. Humrich took his seat and entered upon the duties of office. Since that time he has served constantly, being re-elected year after year. The minutes of the meeting of February 6, 1860, were written by Mr. Humrich, as secretary protem, and since that time and up until the present day the minutes appear in his handwriting. It is hardly possible that the record can be equalled in Pennsylvania.

Last week's Mercersburg Journal gives the following account of a very sudden death at Cove Gap: On Friday morning John Hawbaker accompanied D. W. Divelbiss, contractor and builder, to Cove Gap, where they were engaged in the erection of a new house for T. O. Bradley. Shortly after their arrival at that point Mr. Hawbaker complained of not feeling well, and after some time had elapsed he was told that he had better go up to Mr. Bradley's house and lie down. He did so, and later on said that he felt sick on the stomach and that if he could vomit, he might feel relieved. He was given an emetic, and in a short time after expressed himself as feeling much better, and thought he would be able to resume his work in a short time, but just then he again laid himself down on the lounge, and in a few minutes death came and he passed peacefully away. Heart failure was the immediate cause of his death. The news of his death was brought at once to town and his daughters notified of the sad and sudden death of their father. Shortly after Mr. Bradley brought his body to his home where it was prepared for burial, the funeral taking place Sunday at 2 o'clock, after which his remains were laid to rest beside those of his wife, whose death preceded his, in the M. E. graveyard. He was aged 68 years, 11 months and 7 days, and is survived by one son, Harvey, at Washington, Pa., and six daughters, two of whom are married and reside in the far west, and the remaining four are at home.

A Touching Scene.

Details have been received from Cienfuegos, Cuba, regarding the release of the sixteen Spanish soldiers who were captured by the insurgents in the engagement fought at Tardio, Ojo de Agua. In that encounter sixty-four Spanish soldiers had made a gallant stand against 1200 insurgents. The soldiers were commanded by Colonel Valle, Major Sanchez and Captains Navarro and Rio, who were among those captured and released by Rego, the insurgent leader. The latter was the first to greet the Spanish officers, and, embracing Colonel Valle, he said: "Return to your comrades, heroes. You are an honor to the Spanish Nation, and I am proud to be able to boast of descending from such people."

Then followed a touching moment, during which the Spaniards and the Cubans embraced each other farewell, the Cubans shouting as the Spaniards went away: "Adios, valientes Espanoles."

The Spanish soldiers, nearly all of whom were wounded, were well cared for while in the hands of the insurgents, and ate at the same table as Rego. The action of the Cubans has caused great good feeling toward them.

How Calhoun Was Outwitted.

Ex-Senator George Wallace Jones of Iowa, tells a story of how when Iowa was admitted as a territory he used every effort to get John C. Calhoun not to fight it, without avail. Finally he induced his daughter to come to the Senate before the Iowa bill was brought up. Arrived there, she was, on a given signal to the Senate gallery from him, to invite her father into the congressional library and keep him there until the bill had passed the Senate. She did so to the letter, and thus it was that Iowa became a territory and afterward a state.—Raleigh News and Observer.

THE GERMAN EMPEROR AND THE ARMENIAN HORROR.

During the last two months the correspondent of the London Speaker at Constantinople has shown himself exceptionally well informed and trustworthy. It is on his authority that the assertion is now made by that newspaper that the number of Armenians murdered since Oct. 20, when the Sultan pretended to grant the required reforms, far exceeds the highest estimates yet published, while the number of those robbed of all their property and driven from their homes to perish of cold and hunger does not fall short of half a million souls. The Speaker adds that, if the appalling facts relating to Armenia, which have been made known to the British Foreign Office, were given to the world, Lord Salisbury would be hooted in the London streets.

Now, there can be nothing known at the British Foreign Office with which the German Foreign Office is not equally conversant. All the facts, therefor, to which the Speaker refers must have been present to the mind of Kaiser William II. when, on opening the Reichstag, he used words in relation to the Sultan which Mr. Gladstone describes as "astonishing" and almost incredible. If the speech has been correctly reported, the imperial head of enlightened Germany did not find it in his heart to utter one word of compassion for the fate of his fellow Christians in Armenia; one word of regret that the remonstrance of Christian Europe should remain unanswered; one indication of a purpose that the tremendous authority for which he owes an account to history shall be arrayed upon the side of justice and humanity. He preferred to dwell upon what he termed the duty of Germany and other Christian powers "to observe existing treaties and support the Sultan in restoring orderly conditions."

We repeat that it is hard to credit the correctness of the cabled report, for the dreadful mockery of the words just quoted would send a shudder through the civilized world. What is it but an existing treaty, the treaty of Berlin, for the execution of which by the Sultan his wretched Armenian subjects have prayed these sixteen years in vain? It was not until Oct. 20 of this year that Abdul Hamid even pretended a willingness to execute that treaty; and on the very next day he ordered or permitted the renewal on a stupendous scale of the process of settling the Armenian question by the extermination of the Armenians. That is the Sultan's satanic method of "restoring orderly conditions," which, it is alleged, a Christian Emperor has announced his intention to support.

Should it prove true that the words imputed to him were really spoken by Kaiser William II., the Armenians may well dispair. By man they would be in truth deserted: yet in the hour when they might be temped to believe that God, too, had forsaken them, it may be that a stroke of retribution dealt by a Turkish hand would deliver them from their destroyer. It was by such a strange instrument of vengeance that Abdul Aziz was brought low.—N. Y. Sun.

SENATOR CAMERON WILL RETIRE.

The announcement of Senator J. D. Cameron that he will not, under any circumstances, be a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate, will probable remove what might have caused some complications in the Republican politics of Pennsplvania.

A Republican exchange that has not been at all friendly to Senator Cameron says: No one who knows Senator Cameron doubts for a moment that his opinions on the question of the free coinage of silver are based upon his sincere and honest convictions. The very fact that he has advocated them, openly and without reserve, in the face of the expressed financial belief of his constituency, attests his sincerity. And it is the very fact that his views are so utterly at variance with those of the Republican party of Pennsylvania that makes his declination to be a candidate for re-election the logical and proper step for Senator Cameron to take. To persist in being a candidate under such circumstances would have been nothing more or less than casting a fire brand into the party.

Senator Cameron, during his more than three terms in the Senate, has rendered Pennsylvania and his party valuable service. It is possible that in the criticism and condemnation pronounced upon some things he has done and views he has held contrary to his party's policy and wishes, these services have been somewhat overlooked, and less credit given him than is fairly his due. But in withdrawing now from the Senatorial race, he has taken the proper course, and one which will cause many Republicans to think more kindly of him than they have been thinking of late.

Senator Cameron's term expires March 4, 1897. J. Hay Brown of Lancaster is prominently spoken of as his successor.

SO CONFIDENT are the Republicans of electing the next President that there is already considerable figuring as to his cabinet. A dispatch from Washington, assuming the election of a Republican as certain says, if this should be so it is highly probable Senator Quay will be invited to accept a place in the Cabinet, thus leaving his seat in the Senate to be filled by a man from the western section of the State.

ST. LOUIS was chosen as the place and June 16, 1896, as the date for assembling of the Republican National Convention by the National Committee, in Washington, Tuesday. The claims of San Francisco, St. Louis, Pittsburg, Chicago and New York were strongly urged, but the Missouri city was chosen after one informal and five formal ballots.

THE KANSAS Supreme Court has sustained the constitutionality of the laws of 1893, which give 18 months to the debtor to redeem on all sales on execution or foreclosure of mortgages which were made prior to the passage of the law. It is believed that the decision involves over $100,000,000, and under it every foreclosure and execution sale made in Kansas since 1893 can be set aside.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES

Clipped and Condensed From Our Exchanges.

Three men robbed the general store of Joseph Hood, 15 miles from Fairmount, West Virginia, on Saturday night. Monday two dead bodies, some of the stolen goods and an upturned skiff were found in the river.

The report of Clerk Kerr, which has been presented to Congress, shows that the expenses of the House, exclusive of salaries of members and mileage, from December 8, 1891, to December 2, 1895, amounted to $2,865,987.54.

Mattie Gowaltley, a 12-year-old colored girl, in Indianapolis, recently attempted to poison the members of the family with whom she lived, by putting rat poison in the coffee. Three members of the family are in a critical condition.

An Atlanta despatch says that the Cotton States and International Exposition will deliver its diplomas and medals before the close of the Fair, which ends on December 31. The total number of medals awarded is 1543, and the number of diplomas 1546.

The steamer Venezuela, at New York on Saturday, brought news of a serious insurrection at Maracaibo and Coro against the Crespo government, which was still in full swing when the steamer left La Guayra. The President had, however, taken energetic measures to suppress the revolt.

Renegade Apaches from the San Carlos Reservation, in Arizona, who murdered five men and a young girl, last week, are being pursued by United States troops from Forts Bayard and Grant into their stronghold in the Sierra Madre. An unverified report reached Fort Bayard, Sunday, of a fight near Clifton, Arizona, in which one or more of a citizens' posse had been killed by the Indians.

According to a telegram from Port Townsend, Washington, "a concession from the Chinese Government to build a line of railway from tidewater to Peking has been obtained by a syndicate of American capitalists. The road will be about 200 miles long and will tap a valuable coal mining district." Senator Brice, ex-Secretary John W. Foster and Whitelaw Reid are said to be interested in the project.

The Adams family is still in evidence in Massachusetts. Charles Francis Adams 2d, who was installed as Mayor of Quincy last week, marks the fifth generation of Adamses in office. He is a son of the late John Quincy Adams, a grandson of Charles Francis, a great-grandson of the great John Quincy and a great-great-grandson of the original John Adams. Three of his ancestors were national statesmen, and two of them Presidents.

The dead and partly decomposed bodies of Henry Williams and wife were found in their home, near Moulton, Alabama, recently. Williams had crushed his wife's skull with an axe and then shot himself with a pistol.—August Nibleen, a Swede, 25 years old, on Monday, shot and probably fatally wounded Annie Bundy, aged 16, and then killed himself, near Peshtigo, Wisconsin. The girl had rejected his addresses.—Deputy Sheriff J. M. Brookin was assassinated at his home, seven miles from Monticello, Florida, on Sunday night.

Will Ex-President Harrison Marry Again?

There are rumors in Washington that Mrs. Dimmick, the attractive niece of Mrs. Harrison, whose presence at the White House was the social charm of President Harrison's Administration, will soon be married to the Ex-President. It was declared recently by an intimate friend of the Harrisons, a member of a family whose distinguished head occupies one of the most eminent offices under the National Government, that the engagement could be stated on the best authority.

Ex-President Harrison was seen at his residence in Indianapolis, Sunday night, and asked regarding the report that he and Mrs. Dimmick were to be married, but he refused to answer the question directly, simply saying to the reporter that he should not ask him such a question.

The refusal of the Ex-President either to confirm the report or give it denial is regarded as very significant, in view of the fact that some months ago when the same thing was current, he gave it an unqualified denial. His manner in refusing to answer the question was rather of a man who felt hurt by the interrogatory, but nothing in his manner gave a clue to the real facts in the case.

None of his personal friends have been admitted to his confidence if it be true that he and Mrs. Dimmick are to be married.

TOWN AND TOWNSHIP.

The Events of the County as Chronicled by "Review" Correspondents—Summary of the Week's News.

UPPER STRASBURG.

Dogs killed two sheep and wounded eight others Tuesday night of last week for Clayton Reed, who resides one mile south of Upper Strasburg.

Rev. J. C. Mumper closed his protracted meeting in the M. E. church on Thursday evening. The meeting was an occasion of much interest.—The M. E. Sabbath school purposes giving an entertainment on Christmas eve.

The hunting party arrived home safely from Bear Valley Saturday, having secured one pheasant, two turkeys, six rabbits and eight squirrels. A number of deer were seen but none shot.

John Foltz, who resides within two miles of Upper Strasburg, almost severed his left foot with an axe on Friday morning while attempting to split a piece of wood. He was chopping cord wood for Jacob Slichter.—Mrs. Elizabeth Hunsecker, wife of Abraham Hunsecker, severely scalded her hand Friday morning.

A Crow Indian and a cow boy arrived in our town Thursday evening and Friday morning performed some nice feats in pony riding and throwing the lasso.

Mrs. P. E. Worthington, Mrs. John Nusbaum and Mrs. S. A. Burgner, who have been confined to their beds for some time, we are glad to learn are now improving slowly.—Wm. M. Miller and G. W. Hoffman, who have been sick for some time, are able to be at work again.—R. S. Worthington, David Holtry and C. N. Miller are still on the sick list.

Rev. Levi Clay, of Cumberland county, was one of our pleasant callers Thursday evening.—Miss Mary Hammon, who was visiting friends in Cumberland county, is at home again.—George Mills of Idaho Falls, Idaho, was visiting his brothers and sisters in Letterkenny township the past few days.

The wells in the western part of Upper Strasburg are nearly all dry and this puts tenants to a great deal of trouble carrying water.

Many of the young urchins of the town schools are looking forward to the Christmas treat, in their imagination fixing up the size of the toots and the amount of candy.

J. W. Douglas, one of our enterprising butchers, seems to be engaged now every day and many are the hogs that squeal as he approaches.

Candidates are beginning to arrange themselves for the supervisorship, at the spring election already.

GREENWOOD.

Mr. Warren, Roxbury, is here deer hunting. He is staying with his grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Peiffer, who had been suffering with typhoid fever but is now convalescent.

The postmaster, Mr. Black, of Greenwood, or Black's Gap postoffice, as it is officially called, is a man of patriotic feelings, to say the least. In fact it is refreshing to see such a spirit evinced at this late day. He executes pension vouchers for the widows of the old soldiers and refuses to be recompensed for the same. While the average soldier does not attach much value to a quarter he highly appreciates the spirit in which it is refused in such cases. Thank you Mr. Black.

There is said to be other game in the mountains than deer; several persons of late have heard cries of what they suppose to be a panther. Some of these people declare they saw the animal distinctly in the neighborhood of old Caledonia furnace. These animals are by no means playthings, and, while they will generally avoid mankind, if driven by hunger or wounds will not hesitate a moment in jumping a man. It would be well for people to keep a sharp lookout, and should a person come in contact with the brute he should not attempt to shoot unless he has a sure thing for should he only be wounded he will spring on the person so offending at once. Their movements are as quick as lightning.

The church at Mount Union is holding protracted meetings. Mention was made three weeks ago of the financial stress of the congregation and a hint that some dollar bills and a few loads of wood would be in order. Ask largely and ye shall receive so that your joy may be full, says the Lord. So we have asked, that is all we can do.

J. M.

QUINCY.

The beautiful new brick church of the United Brethren at Quincy was dedicated with impressive services Sunday evening. Saturday evening services were held in the church for the first time. Rev. J. W. Kiracoffe, Chambersburg, preached a very able sermon Sunday morning after Sabbath school. The services were opened with singing by the choir, followed with reading of Scripture lesson by Rev. Kiracoffe and prayer by Presiding Elder Anthony. Bishop Castle, Elkhart, Indiana, preached to about 500 people, who gathered from all sections of the surrounding country. The theme of his address was "The secret of success." His sermon was able and eloquent. He expressed much gratification at the large audience. The Scriptures are the law of the church, he said, its guide and the promise of a great reward to all them that love and obey the Gospel. The church must have a leader and all must work faithfully and earnestly in the Master's calling and help build up and strengthen the church. It will then increase in membership and influence until the whole world yields to its precious teachings and the Gospel prophecy will be fulfilled. He advised every person to join some branch of the christian church and be an active member of it. The musical portion of the service was under the direction of Geo. W. Middour, Esq. Miss Edith B. Wertz presided at the organ. A statement of the cost and of the subscriptions, material and labor contributed was made as follows: Valuation of property, $2500; cost of church, and lot, $1690.12; subscriptions, labor and hauling, $1039.88. The deficiency was $660.24. Bishop Castle appointed H. E. Snyder and D. A. Monn secretaries and Revs. J. B. Weidler, J. P. Anthony, Ayers, Kiracoffe, Clippinger, Kitzmiller, Shuman and Mrs. Sarah Snyder and Mrs. Etta J. Kitzmiller to go through the congregation and solicit subscriptions and cash. They obtained $561.50, which left a balance of $88.74 to be raised. This was obtained in the evening and the church was dedicated free of debt. The building is of brick, 38x51 feet with an addition 9x16 feet for class-room and Sabbath school purposes. The interior is furnished in yellow oak. The twelve windows are of stained glass. The pulpit platform is 10x14 feet and the pulpit stand is of walnut 34x30 inches, surrounded by a handsome oak railing. In the centre of the church is a fine, large heater and from the centre of the ceiling hangs a large chandelier. The class-room and Sabbath school room are furnished with comfortable chairs. The aisle and pulpit are covered with fine carpet. The building committee was composed of Rev. H. J. Kitzmiller, Geo. C. Rock, B. F. Burkholder, D. A. Monn, Geo. W. Miller and Joseph Smetzer. The committee on subscriptions was Rev. J. B. Weidler, pastor of the church, Geo. W. Miller, B. F. Burkholder, Jno. G. Hess, Geo. G. Rock, Mrs. Etta Kitzmiller, Mrs. Sarah Snyder, Miss Minnie Rock, Miss Rebecca Hess and Mrs. Nancy Miller. The church is neat in appearance and very comfortable and the exercises of the day will long be remembered by every resident of the community. The good people of Quincy who entertained and fed the horses of the big crowd, deserve plenty of praise for their generous hospitality. They included Rev. H. J. Kitzmiller, 'Squire Middour, Peter Whitmore, Geo. C. Rock, H. B. Snyder, Jno. G. Hess, Mrs. Mary Martin, Isaac D. Shockey, Geo. W. Miller and others whose names we were unable to ascertain.—Revs. J. P. Anthony and J. C. Clippinger, pastors of the charge many years ago, were present.—Persons were there from Antrim, Chambersburg, Guilford, Green, Mercersburg, Waynesboro and Washington township.—'Squire H. M. Small, a prominent member of the U. B. church at Altodale, was present.—We would have enjoyed being present Saturday evening and Sunday evening to take a full report of the dedicatory exercises but could not possibly do so.

A very quiet wedding took place at the residence of and by the Rev. Irvin M. Beaver, Marion, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 1. The groom was James Keagey of the nunnery, and the bride was Miss Emma L. Funk, Fox Hill. Mrs. Keagey is one of Fox Hill's best-known young ladies and very prominent in society. Mr. Keagey is among Quincy's most prosperous and industrious young men, having a host of friends. Your correspondent joins in wishing both long life and happiness.

Rev. D. M. Benedict, Pigeon Hill schoolhouse, will quit farming and make sale the coming spring. Daniel Sollenberger will work the farm.

Levi Thompson, Kent, Stevenson county, Ill., arrived at Quincy Wednesday evening of last week. He left his home Tuesday morning at 5 o'clock. He is at present visiting friends and relatives at Fox Hill. He was surprised when he reached Quincy township, his former home, to find such pleasant weather. He says that in Illinois they have had 18 inches of snow already and the morning of his departure they were sleighing there. He expects to remain east some time.

George Monn of Jacob, near Blue Rock schoolhouse, Wednesday of last week killed two hogs that weighed, when dressed, 366 and 341 pounds. George always slaughters good hogs.

The large dam at Small's mill was entirely frozen over Friday last and many persons were on the dam skating. The dam has not been frozen sufficiently hard for skating, on Dec. 6, for many years.

D. W. T.

STENGER.

George Mills, formerly of this place, but now of Idaho, is visiting friends and relatives in the valley.

George W. Geyer has taken a contract to furnish five sets of switch ties for the Western Maryland Railroad.

George W. Mackey is getting lumber ready to build a new house next spring on his farm near Stenger.

Mrs. George W. Geyer and daughter were visiting the family of George Speck, near Roxbury some days since.

ELEVATOR BURNED AT FIVE FORKS.

Safe Blown Open and Robbed—Many Bushels of Grain Burned.

Shortly after midnight, Tuesday morning, some of the people of Five Forks were awakened by the loud report of an explosion. On going to see what was wrong they discovered that the warehouse was on fire. Hastening to the building the safe was found with the door blown off and lying some distance from the safe. The building was a frame one and as the fire had made considerable headway before the people were fully aroused, and as the means of fighting fire were limited, there was no possibility of saving the building or much of the contents.

There was not much money in the safe, but there were about 800 bushels of wheat and 1000 bushels of corn in the warehouse. There were also some goods, the books and other property in the railroad office and the contents of the postoffice. The telephone wires were burned, so that communication was cut off, and a lot of new copper wire for the long distance line which was stored in the warehouse was also burned.

The elevator was owned by Samuel S. Wingert, who estimates his loss at $5000 or more. The amount of insurance he carried was considerable but does not nearly cover the loss. This is not the first attempt to rob Mr. Wingert and fire his building. The safe was blown open and robbed some years ago. This time there was but little money in the safe—only a few dollars.

There is no clue to the perpetrators of the act, the only suspicious circumstance connected with the robbery is the fact that a fairly well dressed stranger was seen about the place on Sunday, who gave no account of himself except to say that he was not used to tramping.

The number of these night depradations is becoming so great that no one feels safe as to his property, especially in the country and smaller towns, where help cannot well be had and where there is not protection against incendiary fires. It seems as though there is an organized gang of burglars and fire bugs in the Cumberland Valley, who know well how to cover their tracks and avoid detection.

In connection with the above fire there was an improbable rumor that the body of the fellow who blew open the safe was possibly burned in the building.

What Some Hunters Have Done.

The South Mountain hunters have been unusually successful this season. They have killed about 18 deer, besides a quantity of smaller game. The largest deer was brought down by Charles T. Mahon; it weighed 180 pounds.

John Steganious, a one-armed hunter, of Hancock, Md., has killed over 20 wild turkeys this season one of which weighed 22 pounds.

A party of five hunters, Upton, Jacob and Miller Truax and McClellan and Emory Diehl, killed a black bear weighing 202 pounds, on Sideling Hill, Fulton county, last week. The dogs routed the bear from his lair in a thicket. Bruin sought to escape, but after an exciting chase of a half hour was brought down by a well directed bullet. The bear was supposed to be about two years old. The hunters sold the carcass for $23.

Long Distance Telephone Completed.

It was quite a treat that Manager W. J. C. Jacobs of the telephone service in this county gave to the Chambersburg patrons of the line at the exchange here on Thursday evening. The metallic circuit having been completed, our office was put in communication with New York and a number of other distant cities, and from 7 to 9 o'clock the office was thronged with subscribers who either conversed with Col. McCall of the New York exchange or with Chicago, Philadelphia and other cities, or listened through the twenty receivers to what was said. There was music—vocal and instrumental—from Reading. The tests were entirely satisfactory. Any one whose hearing was not defective could hear communications from New York about as well as over our local lines.

The copper metallic circuit is considered the best known and its power seems to be practically unlimited. When the line is connected from Waynesboro with the Chesapeake and Potomac line we will have direct communication with Baltimore, Washington and the South.

Manager Jacobs has been energetic and unceasing in his labors to have the line completed to the county and he deserves all praise for what he has done to hurry the work along.

It is something marvelous to step into a booth and ring up New York, Chicago or some other city hundreds of miles away and not only hear the words, but distinguish the tones of voice of the man at the other end. This is the age of the marvelous, however, based on scientific principles, and the general inquiry is: What next?

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1895.

A WORD IN PASSING.

Town and County Briefs With a Bit of Comment—Happenings of the Week and a Forecast of Coming Events.

The quarterly meeting of the King street U. B. church, has been postponed from December 15 to Sabbath, December 29, 1895.

On Tuesday of last week, Wm. H. Bennett and his former wife were re-married in Hagerstown after having been divorced only a few months.

The horse collar factory of Coover Brothers, at Mechanicsburg, was burned early Sunday morning. The loss is nearly $4000. The fire was the work of an incendiary.

Bixley's store at Wormleysburg, Cumberland county, was robbed Saturday morning of over $200 worth of goods. This store has been robbed at least half-a-dozen times.

While at play one day last week, Moses, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Nusbaum, Upper Strasburg, had his eye badly hurt by being accidentally struck with a croquet ball.

There was an interesting revival in progress at the M. E. church at Metal, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Ash. Quite a number were converted. The meeting closed Sunday night.

Ex-Senator Alexander, McConnellsburg, informs a representative of the Philadelphia Press that the prospects of a railroad through Fulton county, running north and south, are very good. It is to connect with the B. & O. at Hancock, Md.

The Reformed and Presbyterian Sunday schools at Fannettsburg are making elaborate preparation for the observance of Christmas. The decorations of the churches will be beautiful and the programs will be very entertaining and instructive.

On Friday morning a car load of cattle consisting of 23 head that had been shipped to Shippensburg were found frozen to death in the open car in which they had been shipped. The cold weather of Thursday night, it is thought, caused their death.

Homer Foster, a blind man, aged about 45 years, of Oneida township, Huntingdon county, fell dead while seated at the supper table Monday. Foster was one of the principal witnesses for the Commonwealth in a murder trial that was called in court Tuesday.

Henry Buckey, of Hagerstown, employed on the W. M. R. R. floating gang, was run over by a gondola car Friday afternoon and killed. His body was almost cut in two and his neck was broken. He was married but had no children. His age was 46 years.

While in Harrisburg between trains one evening last week, Baggageman Will Edmondson, by hard running, overtook and captured a thief who had stolen a diamond ring from a jeweler. The fellow ran quite rapidly to get away but William's superior speed did the business.

Rev. E. B. Somers, of Spring Run, is conducting a successful revival at the new U. B. church in Amberson's valley, that was dedicated on the 24th of November. It is a handsome and comfortable building and well suited in all respects to the congregation on that portion of Rev. Somers' charge.

The Ladies' G. A. R. circle of Housum Post on Monday evening elected the following officers: President, Mrs. A. C. McGrath; senior vice, Mrs. W. A. Reitzel; junior vice, Mrs. Wm. Tolbert; chaplain, Mrs. J. B. Holtzworth; treasurer, Miss Nettie Reitzel; conductor, Miss Ida Atwell; guard, Mrs. Mary Mickey.

Supervisor S. A. Bergner, of Upper Strasburg, deserves the thanks of the travelling public for the excellent condition in which he has put the "Lawyers' road" on the eastern side of the Strasburg mountain. If he could just avoid the steep "pinch" near the top the road would be firstrate all the way up.

Governor Hastings has been confined to the executive mansion with a mild case of bilious fever. This is the third attack of the malady since his return three weeks ago from the Atlanta Exposition. His condition has not been serious enough to prevent him from attending to such affairs as require his immediate attention.

Thus far Addison Byers, of St. Thomas, holds the belt for big hogs. On the 26th of November he slaughtered two for his own family that dressed respectively 400½ and 500 pounds. Rev. Hughes of Lehmaster and Rev. Bassler rendered valuable assistance not only in work but in directing as to the best manner of handling and manipulating such overgrown porkers.

A statement went the rounds of the papers some time ago that in no year since the Christian era had there been two full moons in one month. Mrs. C. E. Albert, of Hagerstown, was looking over her old almanacs some days since and found that in December 1876, there were two full moons—one on the 1st and the other on the 30th of the months.

Announcement is made that a number of members of the Salvation Army will hold meetings in Webb Hall, South Main street, beginning next Tuesday evening. The opening or assembly meeting will be held on the public square, if the weather permits, from which point the organization will march to the hall. A cordial invitation to attend the meetings is extended to all.

William L. Boyer and Miss Louise M. Wood, daughter of Geo. H. Wood, South Main street, were married Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Merklen, South Main street. Rev. E. H. Leisenring performed the ceremony. The newly married couple left the same evening for the Atlanta Exposition and other points south. They expect to return about Christmas.

The four-horse wagon to which Michael Gleim's team was attached, was struck by an engine on the P. & R. railroad near Boiling Spring, Tuesday morning. The wagon was demolished, Mr. Gleim was severely injured by the saddle horse falling on him. A young man riding on the wagon was unhurt, though the vehicle was crushed to fragments. Mr. Gleim is 70 years old.

A South Mountain hunter was accidentally shot near Bendersville, Adams county, Tuesday morning. A party of hunters were returning from the mountains when one of them leaned his gun against his shoulder and stooped down to tie his shoe. The gun went off and the entire load of buckshot went into his shoulder, literally tearing it off. The case is quite serious and may prove fatal.

Many of the people of Greencastle regret very much the prospective removal of the Auburn wagon works from that place. There is scarcely a doubt that the works will go for the reason that the company receive little or no financial help from Greencastle, and they have the promise of all such help that they may need, in other places. It is a pity that this industry is to be removed from our county.

There will be services in the Reformed church in Fort Loudon, Friday evening at 7 30 o'clock, sermon by Rev. H. N. Bassler; preparatory service Saturday, December 14 at 10.30 a. m. and Holy communion Sunday, December 15, at same hour. Christmas Eve the Reformed Sunday school will render the beautiful service, "The Wondrous Story." Early service at 6 o'clock Christmas morning.

L. S. Shields and his brother, George B. Shields, of Doylesburg, were among the pleasant visitors of the REVIEW office last week. L. S. Shields has been quite busy the present season butchering for his neighbors. Previous to last week he had slaughtered 35 hogs, some of which were very fine ones. The weights of some of the best run from 317 to 382 pounds dressed. He has still a number of quite large ones to kill.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Cumberland Valley Sabbath Association was held at Carlisle Monday. Those in attendance were Rev. W. M. McCarrell, Shippensburg; Rev. S. S. Wylie, Middlespring; Rev. G. M. Reed, Newville; Rev. A. R. Ayres, Shippensburg and A. Allen Line, Carlisle. It was decided to hold the next annual convention of the Association at Carlisle some time in the month of February, 1896.

Hon. T. M. Mahon is one of the busy men in congress. Two bills which he has already introduced will receive more consideration in congress than many that have been introduced by members in both houses. One is to establish a bureau of public health, at Washington, D. C., to insure measures for preventing the introduction of contagious and epidemic diseases. The other bill makes a pension a vested right, and provides that it shall not be suspended unless obtained by fraud or mistake.

Strange Animals Seen.

One day last week one of the Rohrabaugh brothers and Mr. Cook, tenant on John Hoerner's farm near Fort Loudon, saw two animals very much resembling deer, except that one supposed to be a male had a mane of some length, while the other had not. The one with the mane had antlers also. When seen they were browsing with a number of head of cattle.

He Shot His Companion.

On Friday afternoon, George Sheetz, son of Paul Sheetz, accidentally shot Charley Bietsch, the son of the tobacconist of South Main street, with a target rifle. The ball lodged in the neck of young Bietsch and for a time interfered with his breathing and deglutition. The ball had not, at last accounts, been extracted. Both young men are about 18 years of age and have always been on the friendliest terms. Young Sheetz regrets the accident very much.

Barn Burned in Amberson's Valley.

The barn of John Hassel in Amberson's Valley was burned Friday night with its contents, consisting of grain, hay, farming implements, etc. Mr. Hassel was in the barn with his lantern after dark, and from some cause the lamp exploded and scattered the burning oil over the floor. All the stock except the chickens was saved. The wool was singed from the backs of the sheep. Mr. Hassel was burned about the hands and face. The barn was a new one; there was no insurance.

Christmas and New Year Holiday Rates Via Cumberland Valley and Pennsylvania Railroads.

For the Christmas and New Year Holidays the Cumberland Valley Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets between stations on its own line and to points on the Pennsylvania System East of and including Pittsburg and Erie and West of Elizabeth and Sea Girt, N. J., at reduced rates. Tickets to be sold and good going December 21, 22, 23, 24, 25 and 31, 1895, and January 1, 1896, and will be good for return passage until January 7, 1896, inclusive.

Two Fine Deer.

On Tuesday morning, Robert and McClellan Byers, sons of Reuben Byers of Edenville, brought to town two deer, a buck and a doe. The buck had antlers, it was also mostly white, especially the sides and hindquarters. It weighed 104 pounds. The doe was nearly as large. The deer were shot Monday on the mountain above Edenville. It is thought the buck may be the white deer that was seen a number of times on the mountains west of Path Valley. The deer were sold to Casper Smith. They were in very fine condition.

Was it a Faith Cure?

A remarkable case of "faith cure" occurred at Lebanon on Monday, when Catharine Shroff, aged 35, utterly helpless for five years from nervous prostration, arose from her bed an apparently well woman. She stopped using medicine one year ago, and kept up a correspondence with Dr. John Alexander Dowie, the "divine healer" of Chicago. The date of the cure was Monday. Prayers were said at her bedside and she was commanded to arise. To the surprise of all she did so, and experienced no difficulty in the use of her limbs.

A Young Lady's Long Sleep.

Miss Pearl Barton, a twenty-year-old girl of Centre Moreland, Wyoming county, this state, has slept steadily since November 28, despite the efforts of many physicians to arouse her. The girl sleeps as sweetly and calmly now as when she was called on the first morning.

The physicians state that, except for the attack of somnia, she is in the best of health. Her pulse is below the normal, but steady and strong. Her color remains good and she shows no signs of ill health. The nourishment, taken twice a day, is poured into her mouth, a spoonful at a time. It is brandy and milk, beef tea and other liquid foods. She has become somewhat thinner, and this is causing her parents considerable alarm, as they fear she will waste away and die.

The physicians confess that they are greatly puzzled by the case, which is extremely unusual, because the patient has not awakened since the sleep commenced. Her mind is apparently active, for she dreams, but she does not recognize at any time her surroundings or those about her. The physicians are doing nothing except watching the case with great interest and hoping that she will awaken naturally.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Items of Interest About Your and Our Friends and Those Whom We All know.

Wilson Alexander and wife of Dunloe, West Va., have been visiting his father, William Alexander at Kauffman.

While Mrs. Philip Grove was driving near Brown's Mills on Saturday the horse she was driving became frightened and she was thrown from the buggy and seriously injured.

Thomas C. Woods, of Fannettsburg, that disabled veteran of the 12th Reserves was in town last week on business and manifests his liking for the REVIEW by subscribing and paying his subscription away ahead.

Contractor Samuel Monath and wife returned last week from a trip through several southern states. They spent some time at different points in Florida, and were also some time at the Atlanta Exposition. They were absent some weeks.

W. C. Rossman, youngest son of A. C. Rossman, agent of the W. M. R. R. at this place, has resigned the position of clerk and telegrapher here and has accepted the position of stenographer for the Standard Oil company at their New York office. This is a proper recognition of the merits of a bright, trustworthy young gentleman.

Hon. Harvey W. Jones who was called east by the death of his mother, Mrs John E. Jones, some weeks ago, left this morning to return to his home and professional duties in Kansas City, Missouri. Mr. Jones has a very comfortable law practice. It is understood that he can, if he desires, return to the legislature again next year. He served his constituents very actively and ably in the lower house last winter.

L. C. Shoemaker, Upper Strasburg, was a profitable caller at the REVIEW office Wednesday. After being in the lumber and timber business in Virginia some years, he returned to Strasburg several years ago and now has charge of the sawing on the mills of his father, P. M. Shoemaker. His subscription to the REVIEW is paid up into the later half of next year.

C. V. Normal School Notes.

Col. Geo. W. Bain will deliver a lecture in the Normal Chapel on the 14th. It will be a rare treat for any who will be able to hear him.

The football team has disbanded for the season and the boys have had their hair cut.

Dr. Eckels, Dr. Barton and Miss Clark were among the instructors at the Cumberland County Teachers' Institute last week.

Dr. H. U. Roop has been granted leave of absence for the remainder of the year to attend the University of Pennsylvania, where he will pursue special studies in Psychology and Literature. He will also teach English in the Rittenhouse Academy, corner 18th and Chestnut streets, Philadelphia.

An Industrious Man and Good Citizen.

Charles S. Shields, whose sudden death at Waterloo, was noted last week, was born in Amberson's Valley in 1821, so he was in his 75th year when he died. When he was a boy his parents moved to Perry county, and he resided there 40 years. He was married to a daughter of Andrew Bistlive in 1845. His wedding suit was of linen which was made at home, of flax grown at home. With the help of his wife he gathered considerable means and eventually purchased a good farm which he sold when he moved to Doylesburg ten years ago and bought the John Doyle farm. There were ten children by the first marriage, six of whom are still living. Mr. Shields was a soldier of the late war, serving a year in the 208th regiment.

Fatally Injured By An Engine.

Mr. James Marsden, the father of Mrs. John C. Holtsizer, who is making his home with his daughter, Mrs. Edwin J. Fisher, in Utica, New York, was struck by an engine on the Lake Shore road, on Wednesday of last week and so severely injured that he died on Monday morning. Mr. Marsden was an estimable citizen and for a time resided with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Holtsizer in this place. While here Mr. Marsden by his gentlemanly, unobtrusive manner, made many friends. His age was 77 years. He received injuries to his arms, hands and body, two large gashes upon the head and bruises and laceration on his face.

Mrs. Holtsizer left for his bedside Monday but he was dead before she arrived. The funeral took place Wednesday.

Hagerstown Has Another Industry.

The Globe of Tuesday says: George B. Cearfoss' new butter dish factory began operations yesterday in the building where were manufactured crates and baskets during the summer. The factory is capable of turning out 150,000 dishes per day. There are twenty employes at present and this number will be doubled in a few weeks. An immense veneering machine is used which is capable of turning out sheets of wood varying in thickness from one-fourth of an inch to one-hundred and fortieth of an inch. These sheets are then carried to five automatic machines from which the dishes fall out at the rate of ninety-two to the minute. They then pass through an automatic drier. Mr. Cearfoss has invested about $8,000 in new machinery. Five of the machines alone cost $600 apiece.

Quincy's New U. B. Church.

The new church which was dedicated at Quincy Sunday is a very handsome and commodious building 35x50 feet with a good sized annex. The main auditorium will seat 250 persons and the annex 50.

The dedicatory service was held in the evening after the debt had been provided for. After prayer by Bishop Castle it was turned over to the trustees.

A protracted series of meetings following the dedication will be held for some time.

The congregation is very happy over the completion and dedication of the new church and they may well be so. Besides the pastor, Rev. I. B. Weidler, there were a number of other ministers present at the dedication and took part in the various services. The singing by the choir was excellent; led by Miss Edith Wertz at the organ. The Young People's Christian Endeavor Society is a very active organization and is doing much good in the community and in the church.

Rev. Anthony, Presiding Elder of this district, was present and active in many of the services. He led the young people's meeting in the evening previous to the dedication sermon. His people are well pleased with his supervision of and his labors throughout the district.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

Those Who Have Passed to the Great Beyond—The Death Record In Franklin County and Elsewhere.

Theodore F. Colby, the well-known horse dealer, died on Monday of last week, December 2, at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, from Bright's disease, aged fifty-four years. Mr. Colby was a former resident of Chambersburg and thence went to Topeka, Kan. He had for the past couple years resided at Waynesboro and at Smithsburg, Md. His wife and three daughters, Misses Nellie, Dollie and Mary, survive. He has one brother in Kansas, two sisters in Baltimore, and two sisters in Waynesboro; Mrs. John Lantz and Mrs. Edw. Hacker. The body was brou h to Chambersburg Thursday. The funeral took place Saturday. Interment in Cedar Grove cemetery. Mr. Colby was a widely known, kind-hearted gentleman and his death is regretted by a large circle of friends. He served bravely in the late war for the Union.

***

Rev. John A. Woodcock, a member of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the M. E. church, died at his home in Bellefonte, Wednesday, December 4, aged 55 years. Rev. Mr. Woodcock was a native of Fulton county and entered the ministry many years ago, but was compelled to take a supernumerary relation some years since on account of throat trouble. For a number of years and until his death or a short time before, he was an agent for the Union Central Life Insurance Company of Ohio. His wife was a daughter of the late William Forbes of this place. Her two sisters, Misses Mary and Rebecca Forbes and her brothers, J. N. and W. S. Forbes, reside in town. The deceased was an able minister and a good business man and had many friends.

***

Snowden Files and his wife Eliza, died at the home of their son John B. Files, near Shepherdstown, West Virginia, on Monday of last week, aged 91 years and 88 years respectively. Mrs. Files died about 8 a. m., and Mr. Files about 9 in the evening. They had been married nearly 70 years.

***

Mrs. Eleanora Fleming died on Thursday last at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Matthew Sharpe, near Willow Hill, aged 84 years and 19 days. Mrs. Fleming had been for many years a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal church. She is survived by her son Samuel W. Fleming and one daughter, Mrs. Sharpe, with whom she made her home. The funeral took place Sunday and was conducted by Rev. E. B. Somers of Spring Run. Interment in the Reformed churchyard near Fannettsburg.

***

Mrs. Julia Dunkinson died at her home, North Main street, Saturday, aged 45 years. She had been ill a long time. The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon, interment in Cedar Grove cemetery. Mrs. Dunkinson, leaves three children, Charles and William of New York, and Mrs. John Strealey of Altoona.

H. Taylor Harbaugh, Waynesboro, died at his home in that place Monday, of injuries received in his hand in the Frick shops some weeks ago. The wound became very sore and blood poison set in which caused his death. His age was about 50 years.

Three Happy Couples.

There was a very pretty double wedding at the Reformed church parsonage in Marion on Sunday, December 1, 1895. Rev. I. M. Beaver officiated. The contracting parties were John H. Howser of New Franklin and Miss Barbara B. Thompson of Quincy; and James W. Keagy and Miss Emma L. Funk, both of Quincy.

Thursday December 5, Rev. Beaver also united in marriage William R. Overcash and Miss Emma S. Horn, both of New Franklin. The ceremony was performed at the Reformed parsonage at Marion.

A Bold Burglary.

The dwelling of Frank Henderson on Philadelphia Avenue was entered by burglars on Thursday night or probably early Friday morning. Entrance was made through a window on the north side of the house. A number of potted plants standing on the window sill were set down outside. In the morning they were found to be frozen. The entire first floor and the cellar were visited as was shown by the manner in which articles of furniture, etc., were displaced. Among the articles taken were two watches, gold spectacles, breast pins, a clock, other articles of silverware, an overcoat, umbrella, a hat, shirts and other goods. Wines and edibles were also taken from the cellar. Though the police have been at work, they have discovered nothing to indicate who the parties were.

Some Doings in Congress.

In the United States Senate on Tuesday Mr. Cullom made a speech in advocacy of the clearest assertion and most strenuous maintenance of the Monroe doctrine. The resolution on which he spoke was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations. Petitions and resolutions were presented and referred for the settlement by arbitration of controversies between railroad companies and their employes; for protection for the American wool growing interest; for the prevention of lynchings in the South, and for the suppression of the massacres of Armenians in Turkey.

In the House Mr. Barrett introduced, as a question of privilege, a resolution for the impeachment of Ambassador Bayard for sentiments expressed in speeches delivered in England and Scotland. After debate, the words "by impeachment or otherwise" were stricken out of the resolution, which was then adopted by a vote of 207 to 90. In closing the debate Mr. Barrett criticised the President for being absent from Washington when an important communication was received from Great Britain on the Venezuela boundary question. After the announcement of the Committee on Accounts the House adjourned until Thursday.

A favorable report was made to the Senate by the Committee on Pensions on the bill requiring the payment of pension money to wives in cases where male pensioners desert or abandon their families or are habitual drunkards, or for any reason fail and neglect to support their families.

Senator Lodge is receiving many letters about a bill introduced by him the other day by request, relative to immigration. The bill provides that all immigrants shall be able to read and write the English language or some other. As published the words "or some other" were omitted, hence the protests that have been received.

DECEMBER COURT.

A Large Attendance and Indications of Two Busy Weeks.

Last week we gave the proceedings of court up to Thursday morning.

W. S. Hockenberry and Joseph Spriggs of Upper Path Valley were charged with selling liquor without license. James Varner, the witness whom Sheriff Jones had brought into court testified that he bought a pint of whisky from Spriggs on the road near Fannettsburg and paid for it. Defendants testified that they had bought a quantity of whisky at a distillery, but that they did not sell any to Varner. Spriggs was convicted but Hockenberry was acquitted.

Thomas and Charles Butler, Charles and Clarence Pickens and Ed. Pearl, colored boys from 13 to 18 years of age were charged with disturbing a religious meeting at Brownsville. The prosecutor, John Barnes, said they blew a whistle or sounded a "turkey caller," threw shelled corn about the room and made other disturbances so the services had to be suspended. The verdict was not guilty but defendants to pay the costs. The Butler and Pickens boys were also charged with assault upon Mrs. Jennie Barnes; verdict not guilty and costs divided between Mrs. Barnes and the boys.

Charles F. Whitmore of Rouzerville pleaded guilty to the charge of bigamy. According to the testimony, in March 1890, Whitmore married Ellen Rowe. After living together unhappily several months she left Whitmore and went to her parents. He went to Illinois and returned after more than a year's absence to learn that his wife had married Walter Heffman. In December, 1893, he married another woman—a Mrs. Shindeldecker. The two couples continued to live in the same neighborhood apparently on friendly terms. This must have been the case because the men associated together and so did the women, as neighbors. Each couple has now two children. The prosecution against Whitmore was brought recently by Ezra Miller who also lives in Rouzerville. Counsel asked for a suspension of sentence. Judge Stewart stated that the crime was one of the most serious brought before the court and revealed a condition of horrible social relations. He commended the prosecutor for bringing the prosecution and reproved the officers for permitting such a condition of affairs to exist. Through his counsel Whitmore pleaded that he believed that as his wife had married in his absence he was absolved from the tie that bound him to the woman he had first married and was free to marry again. The Judge could scarcely believe that there is such dense ignorance in the county. The case was held under consideration.

The court confirmed the division of Peters township into four election districts.

Joseph Spriggs was sentenced to three months in jail with costs and $500 fine, for selling liquor without license; Solomon Null three months in jail, costs and $1 fine, for receiving stolen goods; Samuel Null, six months in jail, costs and $1 fine, for larceny; Samuel Unger five months in jail, costs and $10 fine for assault and battery. The Butler and Pickens boys, Ed. Pearl and Mrs. Jennie Barnes were committed for costs which they were unable to pay.

Thomas Callimer and Abram Barnes of Pondtown vicinity were tried for killing a mule, Jacob Woodring, prosecutor. Verdict, not guilty. Woodring to pay costs.

Sheriff Jones went to Pondtown or the corner for Mrs. Mary Woodring as a witness against Callimer and Barnes. The woman went into court Friday morning and said she was sick and had a very sick child at home. She was discharged by the court, the costs were put on the county.

A number of bills in addition to those named last week were ignored by the grand jury. Several fornication and bastardy cases were settled, namely, those against Charles Shank, Richard Jones and George Creps, as was the case against Samuel Caution for assault and battery.

James Varner the witness brought by Sheriff Jones from Amberson's Valley, was fined $5, reprimanded by the court and ordered to pay the costs.

The bill of costs on the J. C. Rankin inquest was approved; the amount is $13.12.

Michael Plum of near Edenville, was put on trial for rape, Thursday afternoon, on oath of Detective Johnston. This case was tried in oyer and terminer. Thirty-three names were called before a jury was selected. The details of the crime or crimes with which Plum was charged are entirely improper for publication. Either the man is a most bestial creature or he is the victim of the most flagrant perjury. Two of his daughters testified against him, as did a neighbor woman. He went on the stand and totally denied the charges and a goodly number of reputable citizens who knew him well testified in his behalf and gave him an excellent character. It is said that his family, especially his wife, desired to get rid of him. Plum was acquitted and the verdict was approved by all who heard the testimony. Another charge against Plum of rape on another daughter was ignored by the grand jury.

One of the cases against J. H. Jones and Clarence Hazlett was settled and in the other the bill was ignored and the costs put upon the county. As stated last week one of the charges was for assault and the other for disturbing a social meeting.

The report of viewers recommending a bridge across Rush creek in Antrim township, was not approved by the grand jury.

The cases of William Hutchinson and John Hutchinson, jr., assault and battery, oaths of D. H. Yates and J. W. Yates, was tried Friday afternoon. Both defendants were acquitted. D. H. Yates paid all the costs in his own suit and his son John paid half the costs in the other.

Charles F. Whitmore for bigamy, was fined $10 and costs and goes to the penitentiary 15 months.

The other cases against Michael Plum were continued and he was held in $600 bail in each, for appearance at next term.

Silas Johnson, colored, was tried for assault and battery and for pointing a pistol, on oath of Policeman Ely. The accused is sick and had to be assisted to the court room. He was found guilty but sentence was suspended. The case closed the criminal list for the week.

The following is the report of the grand jury:

There were presented to us by the District Attorney 34 bills, 25 of which were returned as true and 9 ignored. We visited the almshouse where we found everything in fine order. This institution at present has 128 inmates. The county may feel proud of this institution under the able management of Mr. Potter.

We visited the Children's Home and found everything in perfect order and do commend it most highly for its useful work, its careful management and its good condition.

We also visited the county jail and found everything in good condition and the prisoners properly cared for. This institution has 79 inmates. We unanimously concur in the opinion that a door or doors should be cut through the north end of the jail on each side, opening into the jail yard. In its present shape if fire were to break out in the front building it would be an utter impossibility to rescue the prisoners. And further, we were impressed with the importance of making such changes as would allow of the boys there confined, a portion of the building separated from the older and presumably more hardened criminals. This in our judgment could best be accomplished and at a very moderate expense by dividing that part of the building now set apart for the use of the women.

JOHN H. WALKER,
Foreman.

Judge Stewart approved the recommendations of the grand jury and said he would so refer them to the county commissioners.

Conrad Whiteman and wife of Hamilton township, have made a deed of voluntary assignment to Hon. W. Rush Gillan.

W. F. Holler, Esq., was appointed master in the divorce suit of Lizzie Patterson against her husband, Thomas H. Patterson.

Horace Bender, Esq., has been appointed master in the suit for divorce of Benjamin Rhodes against his wife, Georgia Rhodes.

Saturday morning a number of petitions, etc., were presented by different members of the Bar, upon which appropriate action was taken.

The deeds of Sheriff Jones for properties sold on Friday preceding court were confirmed.

The case of the Commonwealth against David Reasman for desertion and maintenance was dismissed.

The first case heard was that of the Commonwealth against Core Shatzer, desertion and maintenance, on oath of his wife, Nan M. Shatzer. The case comes from Hamilton township and seems to show much disagreeable interference between the married couple on the part of parents on both sides. Each was willing to live with the other provided this interference could be prevented. Judge Stewart gave the young people who have been married only a little more than a year, some very valuable advice in which he counseled them to make up and live together as married people should. In the hope that this would be done, the case was continued to next term. Shatzer giving bond in $200.

In the case of the Commonwealth against Edward Wolff, desertion and maintenance, on oath of his wife, Mary E. Wolff, the prosecutrix did not appear and the case was dismissed at her cost.

The second week of court began Monday morning at 10.30 o'clock, in the common pleas. Of the 39 jurors drawn one was absent and three were excused. Of the nineteen cases set for trial four were settled and six continued. Those settled were, Napper vs. Klenzing; Gardner & Sons vs. Auburn Wagon Co. (2 cases) and Dull vs. Wingert. Those continued were Margaret Ankerbrandt vs. George W. Ludwig; Nancy J. Beckinbaugh vs. Agnes Clugston; Malinda Middour vs. John Price; C. C. Shuch vs. G. L. Renschline; Mary C. Small vs. Henry Small; Daniel S. Reisher vs. Nancy Reisher, executrix of Samuel Reisher; McFarland vs. Byron & Sons.

The case of John M. Stover vs. Upton N. Spielman, was begun Monday afternoon. The suit is for a judgment claim of $800. The plaintiff says Spielman was the owner of a building in Greencastle in which there was a bakery, confectionery, oyster and ice cream rooms and an ice business. Spielman agreed to sell the business to Stover for $1,600 and not go into a competitive business for five years under a forfeit of $800. On this condition Stover bought the business and conducted it on the premises for over three years, paying $350 rent annually. Afterward he moved to another building where he still does business. In April 1893 just after Stover moved out of Spielman's building the latter opened a competitive business in his building which Stover had vacated. This, the plaintiff claims, is a violation of the agreement or condition upon which he purchased and he sues for the $800 forfeit. At the close of this testimony the defendant's counsel asked for a compulsory non-suit, on the ground that the action was brought for liquidated damages, and in this case the provision for payment of the $800 was not liquidated damages because it was not so designated. The court was of opinion that the amount provided in the bond was liquidated damages and not a penalty.

Speilman testified that after Stover left he was compelled to put up a new bakehouse, that Stover had failed to keep the building in repair as he had agreed to do and the amount of this damage should be deducted from the claim. The jury returned a verdict in favor of Mr. Stover for $928.

The next case was that of Frank and McPherson Mehaffey and D. A. Flora under the firm name of Mahaffey & Co. against M. B. Kauffman and J. M. Kauffman. The matter was the purchase of a car load of coal on which there is a balance still due Mahaffey & Co. The dispute is as to who purchased the coal. J. M. Kauffman says he was the purchaser alone. The plaintiff had charged the coal to both the Kauffmans and brought suit against both. Verdict for plaintiff for $54.10.

The case of F. H. Williams against J. E. Schindel was put on trial Wednesday. The plaintiff asks for $1000 damage to his photograph business by the noise and jarring of the laundry machinery of defendant on the floor below him. He was also deprived of light and the rooms were made too hot in summer time. His business had been nearly ruined.

Death From Scalding.

Stella, the bright and interesting two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Carbaugh, of North Broad street, died Saturday morning from the effects of a severe scalding received Thursday, says Waynesboro "Santa Claus." That morning in the temporary absence of the mother from the dining room the child pulled a pot of boiling coffee over, the contents falling upon her face and streaming down her body. Her injuries were shocking and pa nful beyond conception. A physician was summoned and all done for the poor little sufferer that could be done, but death had been burned into that little body and after two days of untold agony her spirit joined the white-robed innocents above. She was the only child, and the grief of the parents is simply unutterable. The sad visitation has cast a gloom over the entire neighborhood and everywhere the tenderest sympathy for the bereaved household is expressed. The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. Interment at Price's.

CHURCH AND SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The Lesson For Sunday, December 15.

International Bible lesson for Sunday, December 15, 1895, from I Samuel 20 : 32-42. Title: David and Jonathan. Golden text: "There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother." A year and probably a longer time has elapsed since the events of the last lesson occurred. The intervening time has been quite busy and some of it very exciting to David. After his victory over Goliath, Saul's army and indeed all Israel sang his praises. The maidens also sang to the accompaniment of their musical instruments: "Saul has slain his thousands and David his tens of thousands." This inflamed the evil heart of Saul with blind, jealous rage. He could not brook the idea that David should have more honor or praise than he. So he would have slain the youth who had been Israel's deliverer. Saul kept his promise to give his daughter as the wife of him who should accept the gage of battle with Goliath and thus overcome the Philistines. David married Micpah, the beautiful daughter of the king and not even she could bring perfect reconciliation between her royal father and her handsome, princely husband. David has become a member of the royal household, and is of the same princely degree as the veteran, Abner the commander of Saul's armies, and Jonathan, the king's son and favorite.

All Israel does homage to the redoubtable prince who has exchanged, in a year, the shepherd's staff and crook for associations and regal trappings of his father-in-law's splendid court.

It is probable that Saul has constantly in mind the message delivered to him by Samuel in which he was told that he was unworthy of the throne that had been given him, and it is also probable that he began to suspect that this youngest son of Jesse was destined to supplant or succeed him. This suspicion aroused the "evil spirit" or the evil nature of the king, so that he frequently broke out in fits of rage against David and the prince's life was often in danger from the murderous jealousy and other malevolent emotions of the king. But as the dislike against David increased in the heart of Saul the heart of Jonathan was knit more closely to that of David. The love of these two princes for each other has furnished one of the strongest illustrations of affection between manly men ever since that time.

The position of Jonathan was most unpleasant and trying—to fill the measure of duty towards his father, and at the same time be drawn toward David with the strongest tie of filial affection. David is forced to fly from Saul's presence and he goes to the aged prophet Samuel who has reached almost the end of life's journey and at the prophet's home in Ramah he tells the aged seer of Saul's murderous disposition towards him. In his blind rage Saul follows David, bent upon his destruction, but when he arrives into the presence of the man who had anointed him and later would have counseled him wisely, but at last was compelled to tell him plainly that God had rejected him the holy presence of God's messenger, and probably the recollection of the time in his youthful days when his heart was still pure, before it had been turned from God by the glitter of earthly fame and power, the spirit of God came upon him for one short hour and he is found among the prophets of God. This spirit does not remain with him long however, for he is soon thirsting again for David's blood, and endeavoring to accomplish his death.

After the visit of Saul to Samuel at Ramah, David was perplexed as to what he should do, whether to return to the palace or not. He met Jonathan and the two agreed upon a plan by which David might learn whether he could return or not. The next day at the table, in the presence of Jonathan and the other princes and nobles, Saul again manifested his savage and relentless hate against David, and so furious did he become that he would have slain even Jonathan because of the latter's friendship for David. The next day Jonathan accompanied by a little boy went out to apprise David of his danger. We may judge with what anxiety David waited by the stone or rock Ezel, for the signal that should acquaint him of Saul's feeling and disposition toward him.

Jonathan took the bow and shot the arrow beyond the stone, and David knew that all the hatred in Saul's nature was aroused against him. The boy was sent back with the "artillery." When the boy had gone the two friends met in a farewell embrace, tears were shed by each over the other and the covenant of lasting friendship was made and sealed. Jonathan the son returned to court, but David with a sad heart went away to be hunted like a wild beast and to spend years in exile and wandering.

How beautiful is the friendship of David and Jonathan. Like that of Damon and Pythias and wallace and Bruce, it teaches lessons of the purest friendship between noble hearts and still sets the example which is not forgotten but is still followed in these latter days but not nearly so frequently as it should be. What lessons may be learned in the contrast between Saul's malignant hatred and the love of two noble hearts.

This is the last lesson in Old Testament history until July 5, 1896, when they will be again resumed, with David as king. All the hatred and machinations of Saul could not deprive him of the kingdom to which he had been anointed. But Saul himself, consumed by the evil passions that possessed him became more and more wicked until his miserable life ended in despair and suicide; and his noble son Jonathan perished with him, the self-immolated victim of his wretched father's sins.

I recently sat down to a very pretty table, where violet was the chosen hue. In the centre a dozen low pots, filled with lavender orchids, were grouped in oblong shape. Twined about, so as to completely conceal the pots, was a wreath of magnolia leaves, and sprays of this glossy green extended to the four corners of the table. The napkins, folded into a hollow square, held corsage bouquets and boutonneirs of violets. Violet candles had place in the candelabras, and were half hidden by shades of lavender crepe paper.

IMPORTANT TO PENSIONERS.

Insufficient Postage May Cause Delay in Payments.

Owing to the fact that many magistrates before whom pension vouchers are executed have been in the habit of forwarding such vouchers to the pension agent for payment enclosed in envelopes which do not have the proper amount of postage thereon, thus putting the pension agents to the trouble and expense of paying the over-due postage before such packages can be delivered, it has become necessary for the Pension Department to adopt a stringent rule for the correction of such abuses. Pension agents have therefore been instructed by the Department at Washington to hereafter refuse payment of such deficient postage and to allow all such packages to go to the Dead Letter Office. Speaking upon this subject Captain Skinner, the Pension Agent at Pittsburg, says: "This abuse has grown to such proportions that I have been obliged to pay as much as three dollars in one month on account of such deficient postage. The fault is not with the pensioners who mail their own vouchers, because a single letter stamp is always sufficient for the transmission of a single voucher, but with certain magistrates and claim agents who are in the habit of transmitting each quarter a large package of vouchers with a single postage stamp thereon, evidently expecting that the pension agent will pay the deficient postage rather than delay payment to the pensioners. We have sought to correct these petty abuses by saving the envelopes and returning them to the senders thereof, but this course has had little effect in stopping what might properly be called 'a system of petty swindling,' because we are informed that many of these magistrates collect two cents for postage from every pensioner whose voucher they execute and then fail to use such stamps for the purpose intended. In view, therefore, of this recent order from the Pension Bureau at Washington, I trust that all pensioners and magistrates in the district may pay close attention to this matter of postage in the future. If they do not they may expect great delay in transmission of checks, because all such packages deficient in postage will surely go to the Dead Letter office."

Ice From The Upper Air.

A Yankee farmer in Brazil who longed for the cooling liquids of his native land and was unable to obtain them in that tropical country has utilized a kite for the purpose of obtaining ice. He fills a tin can with water and sends it to the height of three miles, where it is promptly frozen. After a sufficent interval the kite is rapidly hauled in and the cake of ice is secured. The inventor is so pleased with his toy that he now proposes to send up a kite 150 feet long by a steel wire cable. Under the kite will be suspended a pulley, over which runs an endless chain bearing cans attached to hooks. The cans will be filled with water, and the speed of the belt upon which they run will be regulated so that the topmost cans will be converted into ice, sufficiently hard to stand the downward journey. This is certainly the most original ice machine of which we have ever heard. We have the authority of the South American Journal for this kite flying.

Waited on John Wilkes Booth.

Nathaniel Simms, who, in the early sixties, was Mrs. Mary E. Surratt's colored waiter boy, lives North of Oxford, Pa. He is a native of Prince George's county, Md. Simms says when 14 years of age he was bound out to Mrs. Surratt, there being seven other colored boys on the place. He tells in the Philadelphia Inquirer the follow respecting his mistress:

"The missis lived at Surrattsville, about seven miles from Washington, and being a lady of wealth owned considerable of the village. She possessed fine features and a temperament that was excitable. Her favorite hobby was riding horseback. I have seen her put one hand on the saddle pommel and vault up into the seat without assistance. Mrs. Surratt was fond of wine. She could wield a rawhide with vigor, and it always came upon the backs of us boys so unexpectedly.

"She entertained frequently. John Wilkes Booth was a frequent visitor at the house, he being very intimate with my mistress' son, John Surratt. Booth, a kind of a helpless fellow, required a good deal of waiting on, and from him I received the first money I could say was mine. About two months before the taking off of President Lincoln, Booth was at the Surratt mansion steady. A few days before the shooting of the President, Mrs. Surratt and I went into Washington, and she bought 9 or 12 pistols at a gunsmith's. They were put in a little coffin, which the undertaker hauled in his hearse across the eastern branch bridge. The guards supposed it was a funeral and made no attempt at searching. Mrs. Surratt, after reaching home, hung the pistols around on the walls of her room.

"On the night of the assassination Booth and John Surratt ate supper together and left the house. About midnight Booth returned, and I heard Mrs. Surratt clap her hands and exclaim, 'I'm glad the old rebel is dead!' meaning our noble Lincoln. That same night I helped Booth into the saddle, and he shot down the pike as if the demons were after him. On opening the house next morning I was surprised to see the piazza and yard full of soldiers. One of them asked if Booth had been at the house during the night, and I replied that he had. In a short time my mistress and all hands about the place were taken into Washington."

WOMAN'S HOUR.

SOMETHING TO INTEREST OUR MOTHERS, WIVES AND SWEETHEARTS.

Household Hints—A Bit of Fashion—Humor and Other Items of Note For The Fair Sex.

Mix three heaping tablespoonfuls of grated chocolate with enough water to beat it to a smooth paste, taking care that no lumps remain. Put it into a chocolate pot and set it into a kettle of boiling water. Pour in one pint of new milk and one pint of cream, or a quart of new milk, with the whites of one or two eggs, well beaten. Stir the chocolate paste into the scalding milk and let it boil two or three minutes; then stir in the beaten whites and serve hot.

A house painter's "duster," a large flaring brush of soft hairs, is a very useful tool in a studio, or, for that matter, in any household, for dusting paintings and all objects easily scratched or smudged.

Carriage painters' striping brushes, made of black sable, very long and narrow, are extremely useful in painting in water colors or in very delicately finished oil paintings, to draw in trunks and branches of trees—in fact, anything else that needs to be very carefully defined, such as foreground grasses, weeds and the like.—Art Amateur.

An encouraging note for mothers with crying children was stated recently in a medical report written by the head of a child's hospital, when he declared that "all healthy children should cry three or four times a day at least, at an average of from ten to fifteen minutes each time."

A railway station inspector says that for safety everyone, especially ladies, should alight from railroad cars with the left foot foremost. He states that in nearly every case coming under his observation persons injured in alighting from trains has stepped off with the right foot first.

It is no longer fashionable, writes "Coquette" for the table to "groan under its weight of good things." It is very simply set, however elaborate the menu may be, and very few dishes come to the cloth. A centrepiece of flowers, a candelabra at either end, a few pieces of silver and glass, and the table is spread. Some one color is usually prominent. Rose-pink, violet and yellow are now favorite shades.

To keep your milk from souring—aspteurize it. Put the fresh milk in a bucket having a rim around the bottom and place in a wash boiler of water. Stir it over a slow fire until it reaches 155 or 160 degrees, and no more, and keep it at this for ten minutes. Placed then in shallow pans, the cream will rise all the better; but this must be a careful process. One thing is often overlooked and that is the thorough stirring of the cream every time a fresh lot is added. In doing this care must be taken to mix not only from the bottom, but also from the sides, as cream adhering to the sides and not being distributed or mixed with the fresher becomes, in a measure, decomposed and imparts a bad flavor to the whole lot of cream when it is put in the churn.

There is very little change to record in table linen, except that the pretty colored lunch cloths are no longer in vogue. For one, I am sorry. They were much more cheerful, to my mind, than the small square of linen in the centre of a bare oak table now preferred. The colored cloths now serve as a cover when the table is not in use. There are very pretty ones in deft blue and white; and another dainty pattern, shown me, is in pale pink and silver.

Equality in Marriage.

In a recent discussion of the small number of college bred women who get married, a young man of the day is credited with this confession: "I never expected to marry the sort of girl I did. You know I always believed in intellectual equality and all that, and had good friendships with the college girls. But you see, you girls hadn't any illusions about us. After you had seen us hanging at the board on problems you could work, and had taken the same degrees yourselves, you couldn't imagine us wonders just because we had gone through college, and when I met a dear girl that thought I knew everything—why, it just keeled me right over; it was a feeling I had no idea of."

In response to this confession a college woman says: "I will betray something to you. Lots of us are just as unreformed as you; we want just as much to look up to our husbands as you want to be looked up to; only, of course, the more we know the harder it is to find somebody to meet the want. Probably the equal marriage is really the ideal one, and everybody will come to prefer it some day. But, personally, I like men to be superior to me; only I'll tell you what I don't like in them—the wish to keep ahead of us by holding us back, like spoiled children that want to be given the game, and then admired for the skill. If men would encourage us to do our very best, and then do still better themselves, it ought to be good for civilization."—Philadelphia Times.

THE BEST FOR EVERYBODY BECAUSE

It is easy to find the word wanted. Words are given their correct alphabetical places, each one beginning a paragraph.

It is easy to ascertain the pronunciation. The pronunciation is shown by the ordinary diacritically marked letters used in the schoolbooks.

It is easy to trace the growth of a word. The etymologies are full, and the different meanings are given in the order of their development.

It is easy to learn what a word means. The definitions are clear, explicit, and full, and each is contained in a separate paragraph.
